Trend and Analysis

The Office of Law attempts to keep payouts under $3 million per fiscal year. In addition, the agency continues to close the vast majority of litigation against the County at or below the estimated reserves. Please note that one or two litigation cases can greatly impact the amount of payouts in any given reporting period. FY 2018 has been materially impacted by an increase in case reserves related to two general liability claims. The agency continues its strategies in order to minimize the impact of litigation on the County.

Of note, the General Assembly modified the Local Tort Claims Act, doubling the County's limit of liability for compensatory damages. The prior limit was $200,000 per person/$400,000 total claims per incident and increased to $400,000/$800,000 respectively; the General Assembly's action also increased the time to file a claim from six months to one year. This doubling the limits exposes the County to increased payouts and the agency will continue to monitor and attempt to minimize the impact of litigation on the County.

Trend and Analysis

Transactional reviews typically range from three to 10 business days depending on the complexity of the matter. The vast majority of requests are completed within that range and are closed by the designated due date, with an average of eight days in FY 2017 and FY 2018 year-to-date. The agency receives approximately 1,600 requests for transactional reviews per fiscal year. For FY 2018, the agency has experienced a 5% increase in new transactional review requests compared to this historical average. If this trend continues along with the continued submittal of more complex requests or requests that require substantial changes prior to approval for legal sufficiency, the response time in providing a timely review could increase.

Trend and Analysis

The standard timetable for fulfilling routine requests for legal opinions is 10-15 business days. The complexity of the matter can greatly impact the response time for individual requests. Starting in FY 2015, the number of requests have increased nearly 5% per year and the agency projects this trend to continue into the near future. This increase as well as the continued need to seek additional information from the requesting agency may have a negative impact on the overall response time in providing sound legal opinions for the County.
